For Nonprofit and Social Services

Mental and behavioral health issues have been on the rise ever since the beginning of the pandemic and will certainly continue in the future. Unexpected layoffs, financial instability, working from home, and remote schooling are just a few contributing factors to this new trend.

However, there are many services available within communities that are equipped to provide excellent resources and counseling services to help mitigate some of the associated issues. Charity First is here to protect those organizations assisting people in need.

Our exclusive Nonprofit insurance program is designed to help cover the risks associated with nonprofits within this space.
